

What do Dale's clients and fellow speakers say about him?

High on your list of "must haves" in a conference speaker is someone who has something worthwhile and memorable to say and says it well. Does Dale Davidson fit the bill? One of the country's top speakers knows the answer first hand. He's Dr. Kevin Leman, nationally known and respected family psychologist and author of "The Birth Order Book" and many other bestsellers. This is what he has to say about his friend and fellow speaker:

"Dale Davidson is a highly skilled communicator who will make a memorable contribution to the life of your conference. Audiences love him right off the bat. Your people will be inspired, entertained and wiser for the experience."

...Kevin Leman, Ph.D.

Author and frequent guest on numerous television shows, including Oprah, The View, Good Morning America, CNN and others

Wouldn't it be great to hire a speaker who makes a lasting difference in the professional lives of your attendees? An executive with a major broadcasting firm had this to say about his decision to hire Dale to train his employees and counts results as the real measurement of success:

"Dale's sales training seminars have had a wonderfully positive impact on our sales force. The solid sales techniques he teaches, his enthusiastic delivery and fun-filled team activities make for a pleasant and rewarding learning experience for our salespeople. Best of all, sales are up and still climbing. He's our go-to guy for sales training from here on out!"

...Jesse Leeds, General Sales Manager, Lotus Broadcasting, Inc.

Showing up at the right place at the right time, fully prepared and with the unique aspects of a particular group researched and incorporated into his presentation, Dale is the epitome of professionalism. Here's what an expert in the conference and meeting industry has to say about Dale's reliability and skills:

“The professionalism of the main speakers is vital to the success of any conference. Dale Davidson is one of the best in the business. He delivers what he promises and then some! My clients have all been more than satisfied when they hire Dale. He’s tops in my book!”

...Connie Gildersleeve, Convention Services Manager, Park Place Entertainment; The Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas

Of course, the right speaker or trainer is a key component of your conference communications strategy. When your participants take home information they can profitably use right away, you’ve received an invaluable return on your investment. Here’s what a large health care company has to say about what they received from Dale’s training courses

“The training Dale provided to our management team had an immediate, gratifying effect on all of us. We solved some thorny problems on the spot and best of all, when we got back to the office we were communicating better than ever. Dale’s just terrific!”

...Sally O’Neil, R.N., Administrator, Surgery Centers, HCA

Dale carries a message that’s worth hearing. It’s an upbeat, inspiring story of hope and triumph. He tells of his amazing recovery from life-threatening spinal meningitis. He paints a vivid picture of his rise as a political media consultant that culminated in service to President Ronald Reagan.

He tells a fascinating story of his courageous and personally costly decision to stand up to and halt important political and business figures who were attempting to unduly influence a multimillion-dollar economic development fund. He talks frankly about what it was like to reach the pinnacle of radio ratings success, only to be publicly fired. He recounts his dramatic climb back and remembers the wonderful people he’s met during his years of face-to-face selling. He talks of his passion for training salespeople to think clearly about what they do, how they do it while staying fresh, motivated and thrilled by a successful deal.

Dale generously shares his discovery of hard-won principles that lead to personal and professional success. These keys to happiness, along with a humble look at his journey to lasting personal faith, make for fascinating listening. Plus, he tells it all in a winning, witty, self-deprecating manner that will charm your audiences! Is what Dale has to say worth listening to? Here’s what a prominent political figure has to say:

“You are deserving of great appreciation for your contributions to the community, not just this last year, but throughout your career. I know that your commitment to full discussion of the issues, whatever they may be and regardless of your own opinions, has been of inestimable value to your listeners and to the level of public debate.”

...John McCain, United States Senator
