

Your group will love Dale's emcee and comedic skills!

Dale Davidson is a superb emcee!

Whether you're planning an awards dinner or your conference needs a kick-start in the morning or even some comic relief in the afternoon, Dale's just the ticket. His years as a radio personality have made him a highly skilled ad libber. Ask him about his "man on the street" videotaped interviews that are a hilarious icebreaker in a general session. Plus, Dale can script some truly funny remarks just for your group. Just one example:

Fake phone or e-mail messages

This fun-filled bit of business is well loved by all audiences. Pretending that the hotel's phone center has broken down and attendees are not getting their messages or that their company's server is down and e-mail unavailable, Dale tells them he's retrieved the messages and is going to read them aloud. Then watch out! He reads some hysterically funny messages about selected individuals in the audience. It's a great device to poke some good-natured fun at the bosses and participants! Everyone likes to get in on the fun! If you've engaged Dale over several days at your conference, he'll circulate at your sessions and interview people about who should be mentioned in the next session. There will be no lack of people willing to help! This is a great way to get your attendees back to their general sessions on time. They won't want to miss it!
