

Dale Davidson's Keynote Addresses and Speeches

“The Race”

Dale recounts the stories of an all-star cast of life's winners. These “overcomers” were far from the brightest, most athletic or exceptionally gifted people of their day. But because of their determination, dedication and dreams, they are counted as among the most influential people in history. You'll be inspired by the stories of Helen Keller, Albert Einstein, Abraham Lincoln, Michael Jordan, Orel Hersheiser, Jesse Owens, James Earl Jones, Harry Truman, Ronald Reagan and others. After you've experienced Dale's dynamic delivery of this vitally important message you'll want to step up to the starting line and join life's race!

“Build Your Personal Brand”

You've heard the admonition that “you shouldn't hide your light under a basket.” If you wish to be successful in business, in relationships, as a parent, as a spouse, you must be able to clearly define and state your “hidden strengths.” To sell your ideas or your sense of authority to others, you must approach important social and business interactions as a salesperson would. Have you clearly defined the pitch? Do you know your “walk away” position? Dale presents basic principles that can greatly improve your personal presence and persuasive abilities. You'll want to get in front of the right people and start selling right away!

"It Can All Be Brand New!"

This entertaining and powerful presentation will engage your audience with a fascinating premise: if your life seems dull and ordinary, it's because much of what you're sure is true...is just plain wrong! You may perceive life's marvelous, full color scenes in drab grays because you've bought into such faulty logic as "the way to get ahead is to look out for number one!" or "you've got to go along to get along," or “people can't change.” These sayings, and others, will be humorously debunked and replaced with wise and balanced approaches that can help make your life vibrant and alive!

“The Power Of Belief”

There has been a resurgence of publicly expressed spirituality throughout the country, particularly since the tragedies of 9/11. Research has shown that people of faith live longer, happier and more productive lives. How much should spirituality be a part of the postmodern world? Dale, who has done graduate work in theology, forcefully speaks out for belief in a higher power as a vitally important component of a whole life. In this powerful and popular presentation, Dale takes a non-doctrinal, nondenominational approach to the importance of keeping faith central to relationships in families, with friends and in the community at large.
